Records Retention Schedule

Subject to specific client directives and record destruction limitations and legal requirements, which may be in effect from time to time, the following schedule is a comprehensive list of the types of records created and maintained by the Firm, the time at which the file is considered closed, and governs the period of time (years) for which the Firm's records are to be retained after the file is closed. This schedule applies to records stored on-site or off-site and applies to all methods of storage (hard copy or electronic). (The destruction dates as set forth below shall apply to all client records unless expressly extended by the client or otherwise required by law, in which case the longer destruction date will control.)
