

Lee Dawn Daniel, of Counsel

"I want a client to leave my office after the very first meeting with all of their questions answered, and with complete confidence that I will tirelessly use over 30 years of litigation and trial experience to achieve their goals to their satisfaction. I want my client to understand the legal process so that they can make informed choices along the way with my guidance. When there is a true partnership between the attorney and the client, and my client understands that I am there to demystify the law and work for them, they can have peace of mind that they will be well served by me. Most of my clients are referred to me by other clients, lawyers, people inside the court system, and medical providers. That means a lot to me."
