

Benjamin M. Coyle Shareholder

"My practice is focused on planning, protection and administration. With every client, every family, I work hard to understand what is most important to them, and help them establish a plan to accomplish their desired objectives. For some, that means staying in the family home as long as possible. Others may want assistance with passing a family business and assets to the next generation. I like making those personal connections. I provide clients with strategic guidance, balancing estate planning concerns with years of legal experience in the business and corporate sector. Whether I am serving one individual, an entire family, or all the members of a business enterprise, I want to help clients understand the issues at stake and make informed decisions. Together, we identify, plan for, and protect what matters most."
